

A Difficult Marriage

Finding Hope and Help

HOME  FOUNDATIONS

The wiseman built his house on the Rock

Hope for a Difficult or Abusive Marriage

*From John Doe, Pastor of Family
With Kurt Bruner, The Center for Strong Families*

Those who marry will have troubles. That's what Paul told the Corinthian church (1 Corinthians 7:28). Even the best couples can struggle to protect their marriage vows. But what happens when marriage troubles become unbearable? Is there a point at which couples should end a bad marriage? Or is there hope for something better? Walk through the following steps as you prayerfully evaluate your situation.

STEP ONE: Discern Minor from Major Trouble

Unfortunately, many marriages end today over troubles that could have been overcome. University of Texas researcher Norval Glenn has found that divorces today are often blamed on problems such as "lack of commitment," "too much conflict and arguing," "unrealistic expectations" and "lack of preparation." These are problems that couples can and should work to overcome. Despite what friends, family or popular culture might say, these issues are no reason to end a marriage—especially in light of the serious long-term impact of divorce on your children.

In their book, The Case for Marriage, Maggie Gallagher and Linda Waite explain that couples who think their only options are to either divorce or be miserable often find things getting better if they'll just stick it out. In fact, almost eighty percent of those who were very unhappy in their marriage yet stayed together described themselves as very happy just five years later!

STEP TWO: Anticipate the Hope after the Trouble

Major trouble occurs when someone either abuses or abandons their role in a marriage—when they break faith with their spouse and violate their vows. While God hates divorce (Malachi 2:16), He permits it for marital unfaithfulness (Matthew 19:1-8). In God's grace, He allows men and women whose spouses have been unfaithful to start over.

However, God is in the business of helping couples redeem what many would see as a hopeless situation. "Even marriages that have faced one or more of the big 'A's—abuse, affairs or addictions—can be saved," says Mitch Temple, a licensed counselor who directs Focus on the Family's marriage ministry.

Temple has led numerous intensive counseling sessions with couples that faced these major challenges and even though they had Biblical grounds for divorce they found a way to save their marriages.

STEP THREE: If Needed, Protect Yourself and Children

If your relationship is marked by physical abuse, you may find yourself confused, frightened and unsure about what to do. The most important thing you can do right now is take steps to protect yourself and your children from harm. Even if you want to save your marriage, you should not risk the safety of your children or yourself. A period of structured and therapeutic separation may be needed and can make it possible for you to get the help your marriage needs while making your family less vulnerable.

STEP FOUR: Seek Guidance—Don't Go It Alone

Whatever situation you're in, don't struggle through a difficult marriage alone. You need the church body like never before—for perspective and advice, counseling and encouragement, and hope for God's redemption. Take advantage of the Going Further resources and services of this church for people in your situation.

GOING FURTHER – Resources

Recommended Books:

(Available at the HomeFoundations Center or church library checkout)

Love and Respect (by Dr. Emerson Eggerichs) discusses a powerful biblical model for each spouse understanding and meeting the other's most deeply felt need.

Breaking the Cycle of Divorce (by Dr. John Trent) helps those who had no model of marriage stability break the cycle by creating a successful relationship.

Boundaries in Marriage (by Dr. Henry Cloud and Dr. John Townsend) shows couples how to apply the 10 laws of boundaries that can make a real difference in relationships by learning when to say yes and when to say no.

Love Must be Tough (by Dr. James Dobson) offers hope for marriages in crisis—including those who have an unfaithful spouse.

Recommended Website: TroubledWith.com contains articles, Q&A, resources and referrals related to family problems. Search for the features on "Physical and Verbal Abuse" and the various topics under "Relationships" that address dealing with a troubled marriage.

GOING FURTHER – FBC Wylie Support

Professional Counseling

FBC Wylie provides onsite, Christ-centered professional counseling. Counseling is offered for adults, adolescents and children. Fees are significantly lower when compared to comparable services in our community. All counseling is confidential. For more information, call 972-442-2261,

Marriage Mentors

Marriage Mentors is a ministry that matches a trained mentoring couple with another couple whose marriage may need enriching or restoring. The mentoring couple guides, encourages and imparts life skills. This process helps to improve communication skills and conflict resolution skills, resulting in overall marital satisfaction, all from a biblical perspective. The newly learned skills helps the hurting couple experience the oneness God intended for them from the moment they said, "I do!" www.marriagementors.org Jerry & Diana Mull dianamull3@verizon.net or 972-941-0676

First Choice Class

Each year, FBC Wylie offers three semesters of First Choice classes on Wednesday nights. Each semester, there is a marriage class. For more information, go to www.fbcwylie.org for the current marriage class.

Simulcasts and Conferences

FBC Wylie offers a marriage simulcast or conference at least once a year. Visit www.fbcwylie.org.